MAY, CHIEF MACHINIST, DEAD

Other Victim Was Unknown Man Who, Forced By the Heat, Leaps Overboard and is Drowned—Other Officers Injured

VALLEJO, Cal., Sept. 18.—An explosion of 250 gallons of gasoline on board a barge moored abreast of the submarine boats Crampus and Pike, at the Mare Island navy yard this afternoon, resulted in the death of Chief Machinist Teddy May and injuries to Lieutenant J. S. Townsend, Chief Gunner's Mate Leahy and Chief Gunner's Mate Merrin.

Both submarines were scorched badly. The tender Fortune and the tug Unadilla were also injured, the latter catching fire. The explosion threw the flames in all directions. The men were forced to jump overboard to escape the flames. One man, whose name was not ascertained, jumped from the barge into the water and was drowned.

FINE NURSE, THAT

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 19.—A nurse in the county hospital last evening confessed to District Attorney Kirby that she had accidentally furnished a number of the patients with drinking water containing a quantity of poison. Six were taken violently ill, one died and the others are in a serious condition, some being unconscious. It is probable that other deaths will occur. The wholesale poisoning was followed by rumors that it had been brought about deliberately, as the result of a plot. The sheriff and district attorney immediately began an investigation at the hospital and finally learned from one of the nurses that she had used for drinking water a receptacle that had contained poison.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 18.—Following the drinking of water served from a pitcher which had contained a solution of atrophine, four are in the county hospital dead and three others are seriously ill. The dead: August Fisher, J. Young, Charles Kempy and Henry C. Shutte. Miss Arthur, a 19-year-old nurse, is held responsible. She had mixed a solution to dilute the eyes of one of the patients and was suddenly called to

SACRIFICE TO SCIENCE OF AERONAUTICS

SELFRIDGE THE LATEST OF A BRILLIANT THROG OF DEVOTEES

LONG LIST OF ACCIDENTS

As a Class These Men of the Air Are Extraordinarily Plucky and Resourceful, But He Made One Trip Too Many

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The tragical mishap which cost Lieut. Thos. E. Selfridge of the U. S. Signal Corps his life yesterday is the most recent of many resultant from man's persistent effort to conquer the air.

Lilienthal, a German scientist, and M. Hillebrant, another student of aeronautics probably were the first martyrs to the cause of the heavier than air type of air craft. The former was killed in the summer of 1896 while experimenting with his "gliding machine" which is said to have furnished the first model for the Wright Brothers. The latter met his death about the same way in a test of his own aeroplane. On Sept. 3 last Chas. Olice Jones, the Hammondspoint, N. Y., aeronaut, fell to his death from his dirigible balloon Boomerang while giving an exhibition flight in Connecticut.

TWO INJUNCTIONS SERVED UPON HIM LAST EVENING

Restraining Him From Interference With Fishing and Fishermen on North Shore

INSTRUCTS DEPUTIES NOW ON DUTY HERE

Warden Will Carefully Observe Mandate But Will Continue to Prosecute All Violations in Oregon Waters

PORTLAND, ORE., SEPT. 18, 1908.

MORNING ASTORIAN, ASTORIA, ORE.

TWO INJUNCTIONS, ISSUED OUT OF THE UNITED STATES COURT, WERE SERVED UPON ME AT 5 O'CLOCK P. M. TODAY. THE STATE OF WASHINGTON IS COMPLAINANT IN THE FIRST AND H. S. MCGOWAN IN THE SECOND, AND RESTRAINING ME FROM INTERFERING WITH ALL PERSONS FISHING UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE STATE OF WASHINGTON IN THAT PORTION OF THE COLUMBIA RIVER WITHIN THE TERRITORIAL LIMITS OF THAT STATE. I WILL CONTINUE THE ENFORCEMENT OF ALL LAWS UPON THE OREGON SIDE OF THE RIVER.

(Signed) H. C. McALLISTER, MASTER FISH WARDEN, STATE OF OREGON.

The foregoing is the text of the despatch that reached this office at 7:05 o'clock last evening, having been supplemented an hour earlier by a telephone message from Mr. McAllister to the same import and with the request that he be put in touch with his bailiffs and deputies here in order that he might instruct them to an instant conformity with the terms of the peremptory orders thus served upon him.

This was done, and Messrs. Mack, Brown and Settem were soon in touch with their chief, and when the boats went out on patrol last night it was with the understanding that the work was to be confined to the Oregon half of the great river.

The receipt of this news will come as a sharp relief to a situation that was becoming fairly well worked up to a point of disorder and perhaps worse, for the feeling on the river, and especially on the north shore, has not been of the best for the past 48 hours. The issues can now be awaited minus the suggestion of evil and danger, and the hope is broadcast here that an early and radical but wholly satisfactory result will obtain in the big premise.

The fact that the injunction suits had been filed came as no surprise to the water bailiffs in this section. They had been expecting this action almost hourly for the past several days. The first information gained of the matter by the three bailiffs, Ole J. Settem, W. A. Mack and T. C. Brown, was through The Astorian, and a little while later Mr. Mack called up Mr. McAllister over the long distance phone and learned further details. As a result of the news the water bailiffs did not go out on the river as they were just about to do, but delayed their trip until they had secured a thorough understanding of the matter.

"What will you now do?" was the question asked of Mr. Mack.

"Our orders are not to interfere with the fishing on the Washington side of the river—that is, in the Washington territory. According to Mr. McAllister in my conversation with him over the phone, the center of the river will be the dividing line," said Mr. Mack. "On the other side of the center of the river we will obey the order restraining us from all interference with the fishing. We shall be compelled to let them do as they please there, at least while the injunctions are against us.

"But on the Oregon side of the river we shall continue our activities and shall arrest every violator of the laws just as surely as we can secure the proper evidence."

That there will be a rush for the Washington side of the river today, or just as soon as the word has gone around of the issuance of the injunctions, may be taken as a foregone conclusion.

"Can a man with an Oregon license fish on the Washington side?" was asked of Mr. Mack.

"I suppose so," he replied. "The only prohibited waters now are on this side of the river, and one license over there is just as good as another, I presume."

It is well known that many of the men who hold Washington licenses live in Astoria, and that they will start fishing at once is probable; and apparently it makes no difference what license is held, so long as the fishing is done on the Washington side.

But yesterday and the preceding night there seemed to be hardly a fish in the river, and there may not be any better luck today and tonight. Several of the fishermen who risked a heavy fine Thursday night were "skunked," or got only one or two little fish for all their risk and trouble.

Bright and early today the three water bailiffs will be out watching for violations on the Oregon side. Whether fish caught on the other side may be sold in Oregon territory may be a question. It is understood that yesterday the Co-Operative Cannery gave orders to all its fishermen not to attempt any more fishing—though the injunctions will change all that.

The three water bailiffs have secured evidence against 66 alleged violators of the laws. Mr. Mack has sworn to complaints against all of these, and quite a number of arrests have been made on the warrants already and the rest will be served soon.

The issuance of the injunctions will not restrain the bailiffs in their prosecution of these cases, though many and perhaps the great majority of them had their origin on the Washington side of the river.

ATHLETES MAY SEVER WITH ENGLAND

LONGBOAT, THE CANADIAN INDIAN, IS CAUSE OF SERIOUS DISPUTE

HE IS A PROFESSIONAL

The Late Unpleasantness Has Nothing to Do With the Present Difficulty, 'Tis Said—England Was Determined to Ring Him In

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—It has become known that the officials of the Amateur Athletic Union of the U. S. are seriously considering severing all relations with the Amateur Athletic Union of England, which was chiefly responsible for Tom Longboat, the Indian runner, competing in the Marathon race at London, notwithstanding he had been declared a professional by the former body. It is said that if the present feelings of some of the A. A. U. members do not change by the time the board of governors has its annual meeting in November all athletic ties between the two countries will be discontinued. The feeling shown toward the American committee at the Olympic games has nothing to do with this attitude of the A. A. U. officials, the running of Longboat being the sole cause.

AEON CREW SAFE ON CHRISTMAS ISLAND

English Steamer a Total Wreck But Entire Ship's Company Saved---Camping With Help Near

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 18.—Cabled advices from Fanning Island state that the steamer Aeon was carried on Christmas Island by strong currents, setting it on the shore a total wreck. The ship's company, 50 in all, took the boats and landed at a small settlement all safe. Four women and two children, mostly the wives of the United States battleship squadron who took passage to join their husbands at Australia, are camping on Christmas Island awaiting rescue.

Senator Not on Record as Being Connected With Any Standard Cases

BILL NO. 500 A PRIVATE CLAIM

Congressional Records Fail to Show Any Bill Introduced During 1900 Relating to Foreign Corporations as Referred to by Hearst

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—John D. Archbold made the following statement today:

"Such correspondence and relations as I may have had years ago with Senator Foraker were in regard to entirely proper legislation."

"If Mr. Hearst had come to Archbold direct it probably would have cost him less to secure copies of Mr. Archbold's correspondence than for Hearst to have either employed or dealt with thieves."

"Mr. Archbold characterizes Mr. Hearst's statements regarding the alleged attempt to bribe ex-Attorney General Monnett, of Ohio, as pure fiction, and says they were answered and exploded long ago."

"As to the statements of the alleged relations between Governor Haskell, of Oklahoma, and the Standard Oil Company, and contributions through him or anyone else to the Democratic campaign fund, there is not the shadow of truth in them."

"Mr. Hisgens' insinuations about burning his plant are absurd and unworthy of notice."

Foraker Not on Record

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 18.—Foraker was not the attorney of record in any of the Standard Oil cases tried in the Ohio courts. The first cases were filed in 1882 and were carried along in the various courts for more than twenty years. According to the
